Police Update: Commander Patrick O’Dowd

The image shows a school garden display. In the background, a large mural features a blue sky, green trees, and various flowers. The text "HORACE MANN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL" is written in large, dark, block letters across the top of the mural. Below it, the phrase "PLANTING THE SEEDS OF A LIFETIME OF LEARNING" is written in a similar font. In the foreground, there are several white, curved raised garden beds. The beds are filled with dark soil and young green and purple leafy plants. Several sunflower-shaped name tags are placed in the beds, each on a wooden stake. The name tags are yellow and orange, with names written in black or blue ink. The names visible are "Mrs. Sitter", "Mrs. Smitzer", "Mrs. Morby", and "Mrs. Rice". To the left of the garden beds, there is a black wooden table with two white legs. On the table, there are two red plastic trays with clear plastic covers. The ground is a light-colored concrete or stone surface.
